PARTHO Bhowmick and Victoria Memorial School of Blind presented the exhibition titled 'Beyond Sight' by visually impaired children. This was one unique exhibition and the first of its kind in the city. The photographs were taken from varying degrees of visual impairment ranging from partial to total blindness. Guests like Harsh Goenka and artist Jaideep Mehrotra looked visibly impressed with the works on display. Artist Brinda Chudasama Miller has not been attending too many art dos, but always springs back to action soon. "It's work, but I try to attend as many as I can," says she. "This exhibition is a celebration of the human spirit of self expression and aims to empower the visually impaired through the art of photography," said Partho Bhowmick.
